Shipping Policy on Herbs

If patient gets the U.S Postal service insurance, then the value of the package, if lost, will be covered by the postal service.

Which means someone will have to be at the shipping address to receive/sign for the package. If there is no one at the shipping address to receive the package, then the postal service will leave a note with attempted delivery information. Then you become responsible for picking the package up or scheduling a delivery.

If the patient decides not to get postal insurance, then neither the U.S postal service nor the doctor's office will be held responsible for the lost package.

Insurance varies depending on the value of contents.

The shipping will be charged separately from herbs, so you will have two separate charges related to the herbs
